Text 5 (item 6)

Two seeds lay side by side in the fertile spring soil.

The first seed said, “I want to grow! I want to send my roots deep into the soil beneath me, and thrust my sprouts through the earth’s crust above me..... I want to unfurl my tender buds like banners to announce the arrival of spring..... I want to feel the warmth of the sun on my face and the blessing of the morning dew on my petals!” And so she grew.

The second seed said, “I am afraid. If I send my roots into the ground below, I don’t know what I will encounter in the dark. If I push my way through the hard soil above me I may damage my delicate sprouts..... what if I let my buds open and a snail tries to eat them? And if I were to open my blossoms, a small child may pull me from the ground. No, it is much better for me to wait until it is safe.” And so she waited.

A yard hen scratching around in the early spring ground for food found the waiting seed and promptly ate it.

Text 8 (items 13-14)

She smiled at a sorrowful stranger. The smile seemed to make him feel better.
 He remembered past kindnesses of a friend and wrote him a thank-you letter.
 The friend was so pleased with the thank-you that he left a large tip after lunch.
 The waitress, surprised by the size of the tip, bet the whole thing on a hunch.
 The next day she picked up her winnings, and gave part to a man on the street.
 The man on the street was grateful; for two days he'd had nothing to eat.
 After he finished his dinner, he left for his small dingy room.
 (He didn't know at the moment that he might be facing his doom.)
 On the way he picked up a shivering puppy and took him home to get warm.
 The puppy was very grateful to be in out of storm.
 That night the house caught on fire. The puppy barked the alarm.
 He barked 'til he work the whole household and saved everybody from harm.
 One of the boys that he rescued grew up to be President.

Text 9 (items 15-17)

In the world teeming with supplemental diets and drinks, green tea is likely to be the king of all the ingredients because of its appearance in many products in the market. Its sudden popularity stemmed from the discovery of many health benefits of this particular drink. What makes green tea so special, and are these benefits just hypes created by companies?

Before gaining its present day popularity, green tea was part of ancient Chinese medicine for the past 4,000 years. Because of the process of steaming the leaves after harvesting, the beneficial ingredients in green tea leaves were preserved, while these same ingredients were lost because of the oxidation that occurs during the fermentation process in other kinds of tea, such as black tea and oolong tea. Among the countless beneficial vitamins and mineral in green tea: its most sought-after ingredient is a substance known as Epigallocatechin gallate or EGCG, which is a very effective anti-oxidant that can stop the growth and even kill off some cancer cells. Furthermore, several studies have also shown that drinking green tea can lower cholesterol, speed up the fat burning process around the abdominal area and help improve the immune system

Although the health benefits of green tea have been scientifically proven, its effective dosage is still the subject of much debate. The recommended consumption ranges from 2 to 5 cups a day, depending on the source of the studies. So decide for yourself which dosage is right for you, but beware that you may experience insomnia as a side effect of green tea overdose, as caffeine is also one of the prominent ingredients in this popular drink.

15. What is the best title for this passage?
- What You Drink from Green Tea?
  - Why Green Tea Is the King of Tea?
  - Is Green Tea Good for Your Health?
  - What Are the Differences among Teas?
16. These are green tea benefits EXCEPT.....
- reducing cholesterol
  - burning abdominal fat
  - making you sleep well
  - stopping or killing cancer cells
17. What is the appropriate amount of green tea recommended to be drunk in a day?
- 5 cups
  - Less than 2 cups
  - As much as you want
  - Depend on the source of the studies

Siriraj launches private hospital

New facility aims to help the state-run medical centre compete when ASEAN integration takes effect

Thailand's oldest medical school is launching a new private hospital as an alternative for patients and a means for it to cope with the impending free flow of medical personnel after the launch of the ASEAN Economic Community in 2015.

The faculty of medicine at Siriraj Hospital, which turns 124 years old this year, will officially open its private offshoot Siriraj Piyamaharajkarun (SiPH) tomorrow on the anniversary of its founding by King Rama V.

The new hospital, located by the Chao Phraya River, is a 14-storey building with 177 outpatient rooms, 284 inpatient rooms, 17 operating theatres, and 61 intensive care units.

"Siriraj Piyamaharajkarun is an alternative for patients who can pay out of their own pocket for better services yet want to receive the same quality treatment as offered by the original Siriraj Hospital," said Dr Pradit Panchavinin, director of SiPH.

The state-owned Siriraj Hospital receives more than 2.8 million patients a year but has only 2,221 beds and 851 doctors. Overcrowding and long wait times are unavoidable.

The new facility will also serve as a model for state hospitals to offer international standard care, be self-sustainable and contribute financially to the medical school.

While Siriraj Hospital's faculty of medicine is responsible for producing medical doctors for the country, as a non-profit medical school hospital it loses 10 baht for each 100 baht invested in medical studies, research and development.

According to Dr Pradit, SiPH will rely on services from doctors and medical staff from Siriraj Hospital who will each rotate to work at the new hospital for around five hours every week. During the first phase, the hospital will operate only partially. It is scheduled to offer full services in 2015, the year when the AEC comes into effect.

Source: <http://www.bangkokpost.com/news/local/> 25 Apr, 2012

18. Which is NOT a reason of Siriraj to launch a new private hospital?
- To offer modern standard care.
  - To be an alternative for patients.
  - To offer free treatment for patients.
  - To avoid overcrowded and long wait time.
19. What does the new hospital and Siriraj have in common?
- Wait time
  - Inpatient rooms
  - Patients' expense
  - Quality treatment

20. From the last paragraph, we learn that .....
- a. the new hospital operates full services now
  - b. doctors from Siriraj rotate to work at the new hospital
  - c. medical staff from the old hospital should be improved
  - d. the new hospital will also employ staff from outside Siriraj
